OF
COLONEL A. BURR.

Motion for Commitment.

EXAMINATION OF EVIDENCE.

SATURDAY, October 8.

Mr. Hay Is that also your writing dated as late as February last? A It is

Mr. Wirt At the time of this correspondence and before, did you consider general Wilkinson as your friend, whose agency you were willing to employ with the secretary at war? A I expected much less, sir, from his interest than his disposition to serve me.

Mr. Wirt. You considered him then as a friend, whom you considered willing to trust? A I did. Q. Is this your writing? A It is. Here Mr. Wirt read the following letter.

Chickasaws, August 1st 1805.

DEAR SIR

YOUR friendly talk from Pittsburg, 13th May, I had the pleasure to receive at this place a few days ago. I thank you sincerely for your letter to the secretary of war. I hope it will have the effect at least of relieving me from the most painful suspence I have ever experienced—I had addressed him myself from Tennessee just before I set out and am now beginning to look out for his answer—I would have written you sooner on the subject of my expectations, but I tho't them so well founded as not to require even mentioning to the secretary; they were founded on a direct and unsolicited promise from himself to me that I should be provided for in Louisiana as soon as the government should be organized. This was confirmed to me afterwards thro' col. Moore and general Trigg—and last winter he repeated to several of my friends his continued disposition to serve me; but I remain as ignorant as I was two years ago in what way. I hope it may be in your quarter—and soon, for a state of suspence is penance worse by far than fasting. I trust like a good Catholic that I am in a fair way for Heaven, even if I should have to pass thro' a jail.

I think I understood from Mr. Dinsmoor that he had written you at large, on the late successful negociations with this nation—he has to day started to Natchez, from thence to the Choctaws where about the beginning of October the Commissioners are to meet that nation at Mount Dexter and make another attempt to treat for land—I have had some talk with both the White and Red Mingos about securing a tract of land to a Choctaw boy that has contrived to prattle himself into my affection—this is my business here—my prospects of success are not very flattering, as I find the business must be clogg'd with other negociations.

On the 28 h Ult. Col. Burr passed this on his return from Orleans to Nashville and I understood he intended (o) visit your government.

If I am disappointed in the hope of going up be Mississippi, when I leave this, I will inform you of my course and prospects.

With sincere respect and esteem, I have the honor to be,

Your Excellency's
Obedient Servant,
JOHN McKEE.

His Excelleeny Gen. Wilkinson.

Mr McRae then also read the three following letters:

Chickasaws, October 19, 1805.

Dear General

Your friendly letter of the 8 h ult. I received by post on the 15 h instant, and from some cause or other it was the most acceptable I ever received; it found me here alone, far gone to the blue devils, doubting whether I had not better expatriate myself and try my fortune amidst the storm now gathering in Europe. You cannot think it strange that I feel extremely mortified when I tell you that I have a year past since May last been waiting in daily expectation of receiving orders to repair in a public capacity to some part of your government—this expectation was excited by the unsolicited promises of the secretary of war. It is true he has still held out to my friends the idea that he intended to provide for me and it must be admitted he has taken time enough to do it well. In the mean time I am suffering the most painful anxiety and my cash exhausted to a small sum. I have always suspected Claiborne of injuring me with the government, tho' he declared with uplifted hands to the contrary. I was informed that he had in 1801 made some representations to you and col Hawkins founded on a report made to him by col. Joslyn, that I had abused him and the president in a conversation at Mr. McIntoshes in this nation in very severe and improper language——I have since seen col. Joslyn, who gave me a certificate of which the enclosed is a copy: for what I said of Mr. Claiborne, a candidate for an office in the state of which I am a citizen, I certainly can be accountable only to him, not to the government that has since cloathed him with the mantle of its power. If I had learned ornate et polite dicere to a man whose head and heart were neither of them formed to my taste on the scale of great Mingo's, perhaps I might have been fitted with an office e'er this; however, nil desperandum, Teucro duce. I'll remain here till X'mas. The Choctaw treaty I fear will fall through this season and that will not be among the least of my disappointments, for I had some expectation of procuring at it a tract of land for my young Chickasaw. It is reported here from Cumberland that the secr'y of war has written that if the Choctaws wish to sell land they must send deputies to Washington.

Cressite, &c. is very Catholic, but when I proceeded further to "bleach high" I blushed to the fingers ends, but why, I would not tell you for all my hopes in the government, on paper I mean.

With sincere respect and esteem I have the honor to be,

Your Excellency's
Obedient servant,
JOHN McKEE.

His Excellency Gen. Wilkinson.

The irregularity of the mail-carriers occasioned this to be a mail later than I expected—— I am now informed by a letter from Mr. Dinsmoor that the Commiss'rs will meet the Choctaws about 1st Nov. and this morning I set out with your friend gen. W. Colbert to Mount Dexter to attend the treaty.

J. McK.

Chickasaw Bluffs, Dec. 26, 1806.

Dear General,

So many opportunities present themselves here for conveying a letter towards Orleans that I would be ungrateful to leave this without at least offering you the compliments of the season, and my hearty prayers for the success of your bark on this tempestuous sea of Liberty; for with all my confidence in her staunchness I cannot help feeling some anxiety on account of sunken rocks and the cursed pirates that infest her track.

I set out to morrow morning for the Chickasaws and if you should have leisure to inform me of your health by post I will remain there long enough to receive it, and I hope not much longer.

I have the honor to be with very sincere respect and esteem,

Dear General
Your obedient servant,
JOHN McKEE.

His Excellency Gen. Wilkinson.

Natchez, Jan. 25, '07.

Dear General,

I wrote you a note from the Chickasaw Bluffs about X'mas. Soon after I set out for this place, where I have been for ten days and will yet remain perhaps two weeks longer—just to laugh at the ridiculous scenes that are passing before us——here is a wide field for conjecture and every man takes his own direction. The little mingo here has assumed a military attitude to defend the Altar and the Throne as well against Colonel Burr as the encroachments of the army.

I have no doubt that ere this you will have set me down as a Burrite and as little that you will believe me when I assure you that as yet I am not; and I must know the object and the means better than I do, before I can be. 'Tis true that having nothing to do and hearing that some great enterprise was on foot, patronized by many great men and wink'd at by the government, I came here to profit of any opportunity that might offer of bettering my situation by honorable enterprize. As yet I see no way open but in the face of my country's laws, and desperate as my fortune is, I will never deliberately do an act that will prevent me from returning to the spot where I was born.

I have lately received a letter from Mr. Simpson saying "your friend gen. W. wishes you were here, as he has it now in his power to serve you." This to me just now is very interesting information; and by return of the mail will be glad to hear from you.

Need I tell you that considerable pains are taken and taking here to render your name unpopular; and by persons too I am [illegible] who speak much of the laws and constituted authorities of the country.

Your friends Dinsmoor, Freeman, and McKee occupy a room here and laugh at this puddle in a storm.

I have the honor to be very respectfully

Your Excellency's
Obedient Servant,
JOHN McKEE.

His Excellency Gen. Wilkinson.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, Oct. 29.

The Speaker called Mr Dawson to the chair, but he declined, stating that he had prepared some resolutions which he was about to offer.

Mr Bassett was then requested to take the chair, and

Mr. Dawson offered the following resolutions.

1. Resolved, That so much of the message of the president of the U S. as relates to aggressions committed within our ports and waters by foreign armed vessels; to the violations of our jurisdiction; and the measures necessary for the protection of our ports and harbors, be referred to a select committee.

2. Resolved That so much of said message as relates to violations of our maritime rights, to impositions on, or interdictions of our neutral rights, be referred to the committee of commerce and manufactures.

3. Resolved, That so much of said message as relates to our intercourse with the Indian tribes be referred to a select committee.

4. Resolved, That so much of said message as relates to our military and naval establishments, be referred to a select committee.

5. Resolved, That so much of the message as relates to our finances, be referred to the committee of ways and means.

6 Resolved, That so much of said message as relates to enterprizes against the public peace and the means of preventing the same, and of punishing their authors, be referred to a select committee.

The first resolution being under consideration

Mr Quincy thought this resolution embraced objects unconnected with each other, and objects of magnitude sufficient to warrant a separation of them. The first part of the resolution relates to aggressions committed in our ports and waters. The most material object contained in the president's message, said Mr. Q. has relation to an attack upon one of our vessels by an armed ship of a particular nation, and all the other circumstances mentioned are stated merely as aggravations of this attack. He therefore submitted with deference to the committee, the propriety of referring whatever relates to the attack on the Chesapeake to a select committee; and entering into a separate resolution for the appointment of a distinct committee to consider what may be necessary for the further defence of our ports and harbors. Upon this view of the subject, he would offer an amendment to the resolution in question. He wished to add after the word "resolved,"

"That so much of the message of the president of the United States as relates to the attack made on the frigate Chesapeake be referred to a select committee; and that the committee be instructed to enquire into the circumstances of that attack, the causes assigned for making it, and the manner in which it was repelled, and to report the result of such enquiries in detail to this House.

Mr. Q stated his object for wishing to give the enquiry this direction was, in the first place to submit the most prominent subject in the message to a distinct committee—a subject which stood most prominent in the public mind—a subject which had occasioned a great degree of irritation, and concerning which it was expected the public would no longer remain ignorant of all the circumstances of the transaction. The message of the president, he said, properly led to this enquiry and this house ought to pursue it. But he was not for a mere reference of the subject, leaving the committee to act as they might chuse upon it; he wished specific instructions to be given them. Indeed he conceived the honor of the nation to be deeply concerned in the object of the last part of his proposed amendment. He hoped therefore, the matter would not be huddled up, but that a proper enquiry would be entered into in the manner proposed.

Mr. Elliott enquired of the chairman, if an amendment offered to a resolution which embraces the same objects with the original motion, ought to be considered a complete substitute. It appeared to him that this was the case at present, and that the motion of the gentleman from Massachusetts could not therefore be in order.

The chairman did not consider the proposed amendment as a substitute for the original motion, and therefore in order.

Mr. Alston could not conceive the object of the gentleman from Massachusetts in making this motion. He surely does not mean to justify the conduct of the British. It will be time enough to enter into an enquiry on this subject hereafter. The matter is proposed to be committed generally and the committee will make such a report as they think proper. If this report should not be satisfactory to the gentleman from Massachusetts he can propose any modification of it which he may judge necessary. Does the gentleman mean to cramp the operations of the committee by giving them his special instructions? He hoped no step would be taken which should be calculated to narrow the enquiries of this important committee.

Mr Dawson observed, that the gentleman from Massachusetts had mistaken his intention in offering the resolution under consideration. He did not mean the proposed committee to enquire particularly into the attack on the Chesapeake. Such an enquiry would be at present premature. When the time arrived for taking up this subject, he should be as ready as the gentleman from Massachusetts or any other gentleman to enter upon it. Mr. D. read that part of the message of the president which has reference to this affair, and asked the members of the committee if it would not be altogether premature to go into this subject before the house received the information which the president of the U. S. has said he expects shortly to be able to lay before them? His object was to make the ground of reference as general as possible.

Mr. Quincy, said, that the gentleman from North Carolina had asked what was his object in making this motion. He would answer that it was to have the whole detail of the affair respecting the Chesapeake laid upon our tables. It was asked if he meant to justify the British. He knew not why this question should be put. His motion was a plain one. He wished to have the facts which he called for before him, and he should not then be afraid to meet the gentleman from North Carolina, or any other. His principles and feelings were as purely American as those of any gentleman. He wished to gain facts and to obtain these he thought it best to fix on single objects, and not to extend our views over the whole horizon. In reference to what had fallen from the gentleman from Virginia, what he had proposed would have nothing to do with our negociations abroad. No expression of the opinion of the house is required.—All that is asked is that the committee should collect a detail of facts. The committee will not make their report till they think proper; but the enquiry ought to be instituted. Supose our dispute with G. Britain should be amicably settled, would not this enquiry be necessary? Would you not enquire into the causes which led to the attack? He considered the dispute as being not only between us and Britain, but between us and France. At any rate he wanted the facts and when they were before the house, a correct judgment might be formed of the affair. The honor of the nation was concerned to know whether a proper degree of resistance had been made to repel the attack of the British by our officers; if not the opinion of this house ought to be expressed on this occasion.

Mr. Elliot felt equally anxious with the gentleman from Massachusetts to receive the information required by his proposed amendment; but he could not consent to suppress the original resolution proposed by the gentleman from Virginia. He did not rise to appeal from the decision of the chair, or to question the correctness of its opinion; but his own ideas of the spirit of the rules of this house would govern his vote on this occasion were every other consideration out of view. This rule states that "no new motion or proposition shall be admitted under color of amendment, as a substitute for the motion or proposition under debate." Without appealing from the decision of the chair, he could not help considering the present motion to be a violation of this rule, as it was in his opinion under color, a complete substitute for the original motion. He thought one part of the information required by this amendment was altogether unnecessary.—He alluded to that part which asks for the manner in which the attack was repelled. Every man, woman and child in the United States knew that no resistance was made. If he were to vote for the reso-

Mr. Smilie said there was one thing which the gentleman from Massachusetts himself in reflection, must think improper—that was, that part of the motion which relates to the manner in which the attack was repelled. He understood the commander of the Chesapeake was now on trial, and he hoped this house would not do any act which might have an influence on the trial. Whether that officer acted properly or improperly will be determined by the proper tribunal before which it will be tried. Indeed he saw no necessity for this amendment. The original resolution gives the committee full powers on this subject, and it cannot be supposed that a committee of this house will no do their duty. He had no doubt that before this business was got through, there would be complete information before the house. We should know whether the seamen taken from the Chesapeake were really British subjects or American citizens.—The enquiry will force itself upon us; and the resolution as it stands will be sufficient for the purpose.

Mr. Quincy rose to explain. The gentleman from Pennsylvania had said that he deemed it improper to pass this resolution at this time, because of the effect it might have on the trial now pending. If the object of this motion had been to obtain from the house a vote of censure on one side or the other, he should not now have proposed it: It was merely a direction to the committee in what manner they were to proceed and to collect a statement of the facts attendant on this occurrence. If the principle were correct, that this house should be prevented from exercising its duties on any point because a trial was pending in some of the courts, what would be the consequence? Nothing further would be necessary to evade enquiry than to put an officer under arrest, bring him to trial, and postpone the decision from time to time, and thus prevent this house from performing its duty.

The amendment was rejected without a division.

The resolutions being gone through, a motion was made for the committee to rise, which being agreed to, the Speaker resumed the chair, and the house immediately took up the resolutions, and agreed to them unanimously.

A message was received from the senate, informing the house that they had chosen Dr. Grant as Chaplain on their part.

A motion was made to adjourn, and negatived, 32 rising in favor of it.

Mr. Thomas submitted the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire whether any and what alterations are necessary in the bill establishing a post-office and post-roads within the U. S. and that they report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Fisk moved that the house should proceed to the appointment of a Chaplain.

It being suggested that it had been usual that the time for balloting should be fixed on a previous day: Mr. Fisk withdrew his motion, and the following resolution was adopted, on motion of Mr. Southard:

Resolved, That the House will, at twelve o'clock to-morrow, proceed to ballot for a Chaplain to Congress on their part.

The house then adjourned.

FRIDAY, October 30.

The following gentlemen have been appointed on the select committees, agreed to be appointed by the resolution moved by Mr. Dawson yesterday.

Mr. Rhea (T) moved the following resolution, which was adopted—and with a similar one passed yesterday ordered to be printed.

Resolved, That the committee on public lands do enquire into the expediency of laying off and describing by certain metes and bounds, a tract of country to which there is no existing Indian title, within the limits of the territory of Orleans and to include all the settlements on the west side of the river Mississippi within the said territory; and of having the said tract of country laid off into townships, sections, half and quarter sections, agreable to the several laws heretofore made for surveying the public lands of the U.S, and also to enquire into the expediency of granting one quarter of a section to every free male white person who now resides thereon, or who will within ——years actually improve and reside thereon.

Mr. Van Cortland presented the petition of Joshua Barney of Baltimore complaining of the undue election of Mr. MacCreery, and praying that his seat be vacated.

Referred to the committee of Elections.

Mr. MacCreery moved that the petition of the inspectors of the port of Baltimore, praying for an increase of salary, presented at a former session, be now referred to the committee of Ways and Means—Agreed to.

Mr. Desha presented the petition of Judas Lesi a soldier in the revolutionary war praying on account of his disabled condition for an increase of his pension. This petition with the documents accompanying it, was referred to the Secretary of war.

On motion, a committee was appointed to prepare such rules and orders of proceeding as are necessary to be observed in this house. The committee consists of the following gentlemen. Messrs. Winn Gray, John Campbell, Brown and Gardner.

On motion of Mr. Findley, the house proceeded to the election of a Chaplain on their part, for which appointment he nominated Mr. Laurie.

The Rev. Obediah B. Brown was also nominated.

Messrs. Barker, Bard, and Sloan were appointed tellers; and having counted out the votes, reported, that 109 votes were given, and the Rev. Mr. Brown having 57, was declared to be duly elected.

Mr. Quincy moved that the petitions of Edward Weld and Samuel Beebee, presented at a former session, original subscribers to the funded debt of the U. S. who had lost their certificates, and praying relief, should be referred to the committee of ways and means. Agreed to.

On motion of Mr. W. Alston, the communication from Mr. Latrobe, received yesterday, was referred to the committee appointed to prepare rules and orders of the house.

Adjourned till Monday 11 o'clock.

The following are the Yeas and Nays on the motion to appoint the standing committees of the house by ballot.

YEAS—Messrs. Bassett, Bibb, Blount, Boyle, Campbell, Cobb Dawson, Desha, Elliot, Eppes, Franklin, Garnet, Goodwyn, Gray, Lloyd, Randolph, Riker, Sawyer, Seaver, J. K. Smith, John Smith, Stanford, Van Horne, Wilbour.—24.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2.

The ship General Butler, Lake from Greenock, for New Orleans, was captured by a Spanish privateer on the 3d of Sept. sixty or seventy miles North of the Havana, to which port she was ordered but had not arrived there on the 4th of October, and was supposed to be retaken by the mate and part of the crew which were left on board. Captain L informs that the general Butler was captured upon the principle of coming from a British port, in consequence of Bonaparte's blockading decree.

N. Y. paper.

A few days before captain Murray left Barbadoes, a British packet brought into that port a French privateer of seven guns and 98 men, captured after an action of 3 hours continuance in which the packet lost ten men, and the privateer had 66 killed or wounded.

A Good Thing.—We venture to inform the reader that he is at liberty to peruse the following article from the Citizen of this morning under the impression that the editor is entirely mistaken, for the letter alluded to is now in Mr. Paine's possession, dated Oct. 9th 1802, and subscribed with the proper hand of Thomas Jefferson.

N. Y. Herald.

"It is reported in town and the report is in every bodys mouth, that the president has written a letter to Tom Paine, in which among other things it is said that no reasonable expectation can be formed of an amicable termination of our differences with England we see that the rumour has been wafted from this city to the editor of the United States Gazettee, who in the hope of lessening the president in the esteem of his fellow citizens, has given it "form and pressure" in his paper. Is not this one of the many modes in which the character and conduct of Mr. Jefferson has been assailed by his federal opponents? I am inclined to think that it is.

"Paine has indeed, in the moments of his intoxication, which are all his moments, shown a letter to his precious visitants, and to persons in the streets, which contains the opinion ascribed to Mr. Jefferson; which letter old pestilence asserts was written to him by the president; but who can believe it; who, cherishing a becoming respect for the exalted character of the executive, would give publicity to such a report, upon such authority? Paine has told a lie. The sagacity of the president; his regard for public decency and morals, and his known prudence and circumspection; all induce the belief that he has not written the letter which Paine, in his drunken belchings, has told half the town he has received from him, probably in the hope that the assertion might find its way into the federal prints as a choice item of fresh calumny."

If Mr. Jefferson does not look queer, when he sees the above, he must possess a wondrous command of countenance.

Agriculture—Among the modern improvements in farming, the dairy has, of late been too much neglected. So much of the profit of breeders depending upon the facility with which the milk of the cow may be reserved during the suckling of the calf, the following substitute, used in Germany, the natural food of the young progeny, may be acceptable to our country readers. Let as much water be heated on the fire as the calf would be disposed to drink, and when it boils, throw one or two handfuls of oatmeal into it, and after continuing it in that state for one minute take it off, and let it be cooled to the temperature of new milk, when one or two pints of skimmed milk, are to be added to it.—With this beverage, the young animal will fatten and thrive prodigiously, the milk of the parent will be applied to the dairy, and the intelligent farmer will immediately discover the great advantages to be derived in the produce of the dairy from such an expedient.
